How does the business operate on a daily basis?

The company uses a lead generation service that forwards leads to the office staff. The office staff follow up with clients and screen the leads before passing them to the sales representatives to book appointments. However, some leads are converted to quotations based on photos or specifications provided by the customer. Once a quotation is accepted, the client makes a 50% deposit, and the project is allocated to the factory manager. The factory manager ensures that the product is prepared for installation as planned by the owner.

The owner prefers to handle the planning to ensure accuracy and cost-effectiveness. The typical turnaround time from deposit to installation is about a week, but it can extend to three weeks during the summer. The installation staff, who have been with the company for years, handle all installations independently. After installation, the owner receives photos of the completed work, and the office typically follows up with the client.
